Negotiating Power and Aggression

Innovative Perspectives on Political, Social and Individual Conflict

This workshop joins psychoanalysis, political science, sociology and peace mediation to view one of the "riddles of the world" – that is, the problem of power and aggression in conflict – and to illuminate the key determinants that make these negotiable: individual (un)conscious preferences, (power) relations between parties, the broader political context.

Lecture, critical plenary discussion, and active audience exploration of the irrational in politics.

Mind-Body Medicine – Old Wisdom within a New Discipline

History-theory and systematics of the mind to body approach and its links and limits to
